

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Several primitives form the minute essence of services, which are organizational primitives of decentralized operating systems. These primitives include a designation primitive, which comprises a port, such as the ports identifiable by the URI; a behavioral 5 primitive, which comprises the unilateral contract; and a communication primitive, which includes a set of message types known by all services for exchanging messages in accordance with unilateral contracts.